

Non-Disciplinary Documentation/Meaningful Evaluations Training Rational

Tools of the Trade

When used correctly, non-disciplinary documentation, including meaningful evaluations, are an incredibly useful tool for closing dangerous gaps between administrative expectations and applications. However, there is a common misunderstanding in fire services that written “adverse comments” are punitive so these important tools go unused.

The Career Survival Group’s Non-Disciplinary Documentation/Meaningful Evaluations training is designed to provide a greater understanding and efficient use of forms many agencies already have in place and are designed to, “keep small things small.”
